

Acknowledgments

In the acknowledgments section of the book, the author expresses heartfelt gratitude and appreciation to various individuals who have played significant roles in their journey. The author thanks Rick and Shirley for being a safe harbor during challenging times and Michelle for the support provided through the sharing of books, listening, and even enjoying scallion pancakes together. Sean is recognized for his constant encouragement in reading and writing, along with reminding the author to focus on the little details in life.

The author's gratitude extends to Lauri Hornik and Regina Castillo, along with the Dial/Puffin design team and the outstanding team at Penguin Young Readers Group. Special thanks are also given to Deborah Kovacs and Micheal Flaherty, alongside the talented group at Walden Media. The author applauds Brandon Dorman for his artistry, notably his vibrant illustrations that depict storms of color throughout the work.

Further acknowledgments include Sarah Hughes at Puffin in the U.K., and the many editors globally who have embraced the author's work, specifically highlighting Maja Nikolic and Elena Santogade at Writers House. The author expresses appreciation to Kassie Evashevski at UTA for her contributions on the West Coast.

Lastly, the author conveys profound appreciation to their agent, Daniel Lazar at Writers House, whose unwavering support and dedication seem to defy sleep, along with editor Alisha Niehaus, noted for her perfect balance of encouragement and motivation, ensuring the author's journey is both supported and pushed forward. This section serves as a testament to the collaborative effort and emotional support that underscores the author's creative process.
