

Chapter 46

In Chapter 46 of "We Solve Murders," Amy finds herself sprinting along a sandy beach, the waves splashing against her legs, when she collapses in exhaustion, feeling as if she's crossed a finish line. Taking a moment to catch her breath, she gazes at the impressive resort towering over Emerald Bay and pulls out her phone to make a call.

Meanwhile, Susan Knox, busy at her desk surrounded by trading software, struggles to locate her buzzing mobile phone, discovering it in the bottom drawer after knocking a key to the floor. As she answers, she is surprised to hear from Amy, who confirms she is alive but out of breath. The conversation quickly turns serious as Amy reveals concerns about Jeff and questions Susan about some missing blood test results.

Susan acknowledges a problem with the locked medical room, detailing that only Amy's blood went missing, and admits she initially suspected Amy may have taken it out of fear for the results. However, Amy adamantly denies this, asserting that someone else must have taken it and pressing Susan for information about who would have access to the samples.

Susan reveals that only about ten to twelve people, including herself and Jeff, had access to the blood tests. Amy points out that Henk, another employee, was also present at the time of the incident at the end of April. The discussion raises suspicions about the potential for unauthorized access, which Susan dismisses but acknowledges they do occasionally show clients around the facility.

As the conversation deepens, Amy insists that if anyone, including the police or Henk, asks about her, Susan must say she hasn't heard from her. This ominous request underscores the seriousness of the situation, leaving Susan concerned and asking about Jeff's whereabouts and Amy's safety. Yet, Amy's chilling response reveals her belief that no one, including herself, is truly safe.